The NASPA Symposium on Military-Connected Students is the association's premiere event designed for student affairs practitioners supporting military-connected students. The symposium is your exclusive opportunity to connect with the leading researchers in the field and engage with professionals committed to supporting military-connected students. This 3 day symposium features keynote sessions; research, policy, and best practices presentations; and workshop-style sessions to help campus professionals develop or enhance their programming and services for military-connected students.

Military-connected students comprise a growing population in higher education. These students are those who enroll in postsecondary education with current or prior military service and their dependents. These students are diverse in terms of both their demographic characteristics and service backgrounds, placing an important role on student affairs professionals and leaders to develop comprehensive, targeted, and meaningful support services to encompass the needs of these unique students. The Symposium provides opportunities for professionals and stakeholders to connect and learn ways to effectively support military-connected students.
