Kernysha L. Rowe, MBA, M.A., serves as the Assistant Director of Community and Campus Affairs at the University of Maryland, Baltimore County. Kernysha has over 20 years of experience working in higher education administration. Her work is informed by her background in campus sexual violence prevention, health and safety planning and strategy, and coordinating campus and community responses to sexual assault. She has served on numerous committees and boards focused on campus sexual assault prevention and response, and has been involved in planning committees for the NASPA Violence Prevention and Response Conferences since 2017.

Jennifer E. Hendrix, M.Ed., serves as the Assistant Director of Community and Campus Affairs at the University of Maryland, Baltimore County. Jennifer has over 20 years of experience in higher education administration. Her work is informed by her background in campus sexual violence prevention, health and safety planning and strategy, and coordinating campus and community responses to sexual assault. She has served on numerous committees and boards focused on campus sexual assault prevention and response, and has been involved in planning committees for the NASPA Violence Prevention and Response Conferences since 2017.

Rose Rezaei, M.Ed., serves as the Director of Center for Health Advocacy and Outreach (Calif. Center for Health Advocacy and Outreach) at the University of California, Los Angeles. Rose has a background in public health education and planning and is an expert in health promotion and health behavior. She holds a doctorate in health education and promotion and specializes in the development of evidence-based programs to improve health outcomes and reduce health disparities. Her work focuses on health promotion, disease prevention, and strategies to improve health literacy. She has trained and presented extensively on topics related to youth and social justice.

Jacki Stone, MS, serves as the Assistant Director of Health Promotion and Wellness at Johns Hopkins University. Jacki’s work focuses on health and wellness promotion, prevention, and response to student disclosures of personal well-being and safety. Jacki plays an active role in the development and implementation of strategies designed to reduce personal violence prevention, nutrition and body image, bystander intervention, and health promotion and wellness initiatives. Jacki has a passion for wellness and a focus on student well-being and safety. Her work is informed by her background in public health education and planning and is an expert in health promotion and health behavior. She holds a doctorate in health education and promotion and specializes in the development of evidence-based programs to improve health outcomes and reduce health disparities. Her work focuses on health promotion, disease prevention, and strategies to improve health literacy. She has trained and presented extensively on topics related to youth and social justice.

Anna Sotelo serves as the Violence Prevention Coordinator for the Assistant Director of Health Promotion and Wellness at the University at Buffalo. Anna is a nationally recognized expert in campus sexual assault prevention and response. Anna has a strong background in public health, with a focus on violence prevention and response. She has developed and implemented numerous strategies to improve campus safety and prevention, including the development of the Sexual Assault Diagnostic Inventory. Anna’s work is informed by her background in public health education and planning and is an expert in health promotion and health behavior. She holds a doctorate in health education and promotion and specializes in the development of evidence-based programs to improve health outcomes and reduce health disparities. Her work focuses on health promotion, disease prevention, and strategies to improve health literacy. She has trained and presented extensively on topics related to youth and social justice.

Kristen Roe, MS, serves as the Deputy Title VI (Mt. Ida College) and Title IX (Columbia University) Director of Education & Program Development at the University of Pennsylvania. Kristen has a background in education and program development and is an expert in campus sexual assault prevention and response. Her work is informed by her background in public health education and planning and is an expert in health promotion and health behavior. She holds a doctorate in health education and promotion and specializes in the development of evidence-based programs to improve health outcomes and reduce health disparities. Her work focuses on health promotion, disease prevention, and strategies to improve health literacy. She has trained and presented extensively on topics related to youth and social justice.

Jennifer Henkle, MSW, CSW, serves as the Assistant Director of Community of Concern at the University of Kentucky. Jennifer has over 15 years of experience working in student affairs and is a committed advocate for student well-being and safety. Her work is informed by her background in public health education and planning and is an expert in health promotion and health behavior. She holds a doctorate in health education and promotion and specializes in the development of evidence-based programs to improve health outcomes and reduce health disparities. Her work focuses on health promotion, disease prevention, and strategies to improve health literacy. She has trained and presented extensively on topics related to youth and social justice.

Kevin D. Worthen, MS, has worked in higher education administration for over 20 years. Kevin has served as the assistant director for student development and campus life at Lafayette College in eastern Pennsylvania, and is currently the assistant director for student development at the University at Buffalo. Kevin holds a master’s degree in public administration and is a licensed student affairs professional. His work is informed by his background in public health education and planning and is an expert in health promotion and health behavior. He holds a doctorate in health education and promotion and specializes in the development of evidence-based programs to improve health outcomes and reduce health disparities. His work focuses on health promotion, disease prevention, and strategies to improve health literacy. He has trained and presented extensively on topics related to youth and social justice.